ANAYKA PEARSEY

In the book "Uglies" by Scott Westerfeld it explains how Tally goes through a struggle to becoming a pretty in the Society. For starters, Tally awaits for her milestone of turning 16 and receiving her operation. But along the way she meets a friend named Shay who doesn't quite agree with the idea of getting the operation. Shay then escapes. The time came, Tally turned 16 and leaves to get the operation done! On the day that breaks the news that she isn't allowed to get the operation unless she finds her friend Shay who had escaped. The thing is that Tally doesn't know if she wants to betray Shay and turn her in meanwhile, getting the operation, or if she doesn't turn her in never getting the operation, changing her whole life around.

Text Connections

A Text Connection I have made in this book is Text-to-Text. This connection is with the book named "The Giver" for example, one connection is the citizens are forced to be nice and not act up. In comparison to the book "Uglies" the citizens are forced to turn pretty. This proves that they are forced to turn pretty. In addition, they are both also alike because they include punishment if you weren't to follow the rules.

Quotes

"Night was coming, the sun setting, over the ocean, turning the water bloodred." This quote means that the sunset view really mesmerizing and bright, but the sun had glared over the water, so the water looked bloodred. I chose this because it gives you a warm and comforting feel.

"She was going to turn around, to stop when she should really be getting away, but the snare for treachery, the snare she didn't deserve, it felt like it chose this because she was now easily someone or manipulate you into thinking different than the truth."

ZACH'S LIE by Roland Smith Mrs. Stebbins

"Blue Lies, Zach thought" pg. 45

"A shepherd stays with his flock" pg. 208

Text Connection

I can make a text connection between this book and myself (text-to-self). Everyone has had a time when they were forced to keep a secret or tell a lie. In the book, Zach (pg. 45) struggled to connect with kids at school, but he could not tell the truth about his life. I can relate with this because sometimes I can be hard to make friends when you are afraid of what they may think.

First Love: Initial Impressions

I chose this quote because it shows how hard it was for Zach to live a life that was based on lies. This was also the beginning of Zach + Caitlin's relationship.

I chose this quote because Sam is an important character in this book. If he were not looking out for the kids at Elk Middle, Zach probably would not have survived.

OBJECTIVE SUMMARY

Zach's Lie by Roland Smith is a realistic fiction story about a boy and his family that are forced to enter the Witness Security Program after the father is arrested for drug trafficking. The family is forced to start over with new identities in Elk Nevada. Just as they begin to get comfortable with their new lives someone finds out who they are and tells them secret to the dangerous men that want them dead. The climax of the story ends with a confrontation between Zach, the drug cartel, and the secret CIA agent working at Zach's school. They must risk their lives all over again.

CHARACTER ANALYSIS

There are many ways that the character of Zach Granger changed from the beginning of the book to the end. He says "Zach was shy around new people." Starting a new school not being able to tell anyone the truth made it even more difficult for him. However, by the end of Ch. 10 Zach has started to make friends with Caitlin and Sam. After his fight with Peter, Zach becomes popular at school, but he stood up to the school bully and protected cat. These changes were both positive and negative. It was good that he was able to make friends, but he also gained Peter as an enemy which ended up ruining his life.
